

Sri Sushil Patil :

Sri Sushil Patil is a medical doctor trained as a public health specialist from Tata Institute of Social Sciences, Mumbai. He coordinates the clinical services and research activities at Jan Swasthya Sahyog, Chhattisgarh.

He has organized the primary health care activities besides augmenting the specific programs for illnesses like tuberculosis, leprosy, cardiac care and services like the public health laboratory, radiology diagnostics and, pharmacy. He has developed the Electronic Medical Record system of JSS and is now helping its further use in other health care set ups in the country.

He is involved in observational research on various issues like burden and pattern of illnesses and on cost and quality of care. He has also been actively involved in developing new programs like telemedicine in rural areas and in training of various cadres of middle level health workers. The Atlas of rural health has been developed with his editorial coordination.