

Anvesh Dasari did his Electrical engineering in Purdue University, West Lafayette, USA. During his education he had worked as an intern at DELL Computers. During his internship he worked in the Office of CTO to bring in latest technologies in the field of personal computers.

After graduating from Purdue University, he joined Efftronics as a Firmware Engineer. In his career he is instrumental in development of various products. Currently he is working as an Executive Manager in R&D for Efftronics. In his current role he is responsible for bringing new innovative products.

He has expertise in Design and development of Innovative products in the field of electrical, electronic, instrumentation engineering and software. Till now he is part of development of various products like Data Loggers, Data Acquisition Systems, Fail safe systems, etc. These products cater to various domains like Railways, Power, Telecom, Water, and Weather.

He got trained on best Industrial practices in various countries like Japan, etc. He continuously follows the latest trends of various technologies by visiting International trade fairs, seminars across the world. He is actively associate with various associations .